Art Unit: 2876

1. Applicant's response filed 9/14/05 has been considered. Claim 1 has been amended. Applicant's summary of the interview of 9/13/05 is acknowledged.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

4. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kuramochi 6,634,564 in view of Ikefuji et al 6,601,770. Kuramochi discloses as seen in figure 3 and described in column 8 line 38 – column 9 line 28, a substrate 120 to which an antenna coil 160 is attached. Also attached is a chip 110 and external pads 131, 132. The coil 160 is attached to the chip by leads 141,142. The external pads 131,132 are attached to the chip by leads 145,146 that pass through holes 125 in the base 120. Kuramochi does not disclose the sheath as claimed. Ikefuji discloses as seen in figure 2 and described in column 3 line 41 – column 4 line 2, a IC card of the coil type for use in both contact and non-contact applications in which a core member to which the chip and antenna are attached is “sheathed” between sheath layers 26 and 28. It is disclosed as seen in figure 3 and described in column 4 lines 3-13 that a hole or opening is made in sheath layer 26 to allow for the contact pads to be accessible. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to enclose the card of Kuramochi in a sheath as disclosed by Ikefuji in order to provide protection to the internal circuitry against the elements and to provide for a more durable structure. Kuramochi and Ikefuji do not disclose that the sheath is attached by means of an adhesive layer. However, Official Notice is taken that attaching individual layers of laminate cards by means of an adhesive layer is old and well known. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to attach the sheath layers on the core of the combined Kuramochi/Ikefuji card by means of adhesives layers in order to securely fasten the layers together by an inexpensive means.

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-7 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
